Society Bye-laws (Summary)

This summary sets out the main provisions of the society's bye-laws in plain language for members.

Membership: every flat owner is a member of the society. Transfer of membership requires an application in the prescribed form, a no-objection from the committee and payment of the transfer fee.

General body: the general body is the highest authority of the society. It meets at least once a year to adopt accounts, approve the budget and elect the committee.

Managing committee: the committee manages day-to-day affairs, meets at least once a month and keeps minutes of every meeting open to members for inspection.

Funds: maintenance charges, the sinking fund and the repairs fund are kept in separate heads and audited every year.
